READ THIS FIRST

This is a finished presentation example using invented family facts. No original records have been inspected, and no official citizenship decision has been made.

Your agreed scope: one British adult exploring an Irish-born maternal grandmother line. Other family lines, children, other countries and application representation are outside this example.

SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

Your assessment summary

On the fictional facts supplied, Irish Foreign Birth Registration is a potential route worth investigating. The immediate task is to establish the family link with civil records.

IRELAND

Family connection

Maternal grandmother
Cork, Ireland, 1945

Assessment status

Potential route to investigate
Subject to evidence and relevant facts

Likely process

Foreign Birth Registration,
followed by a separate passport application

Evidence reviewed

Self-reported fictional details only.
No original records inspected.

What we know / what is still missing

Reported: Alex was born in Manchester in 1994; his mother was born in Birmingham in 1968; his maternal grandmother was born in Cork in 1945.

Still to establish: the grandmother's civil birth entry, the full parent-child chain, any linking marriage/name-change records and any material citizenship or relationship issue.

YOUR FIRST ACTION

Locate the grandmother's Cork civil birth record, then match it to the mother's full birth certificate. Ask family which original civil records they already hold before ordering duplicates.

A reported birthplace, surname or DNA estimate is a clue. It is not proof of citizenship or an approval guarantee. Your report should label reported facts, verified evidence and unresolved questions separately.

COUNTRY ELIGIBILITY BREAKDOWN

IRELAND | GRANDPARENT ROUTE

Potential pathway

Foreign Birth Registration (FBR). A passport is a later, separate application.

Why it may apply

Official guidance provides a route for a person born abroad with an Irish-born grandparent, subject to the applicable facts and evidence.

Authority and source

Irish Department of Foreign Affairs. Use its current FBR guidance and the checklist generated for the actual application.

The family chain being assessed

01	>	02	>	03
Grandmother		Mother		Alex
Cork, Ireland 1945		Birmingham, UK 1968		Manchester, UK 1994

What could change the conclusion?

- ○ A different birthplace or a record that does not establish the claimed family link.
- ○ An adoptive link, disputed parentage or an unreported citizenship event requiring separate analysis.

Dual nationality: UK and Irish guidance permit dual citizenship. If the applicant holds any additional nationality, that country's rules need their own check.

EXACT DOCUMENTS YOU NEED

This is an example inventory, not a claim that documents have been verified. Follow the current official checklist before signing, certifying or posting anything.

Core record chain

01 APPLICANT

Full civil birth certificate. Applicable marriage or name-change records.

02 CONNECTING PARENT

Full civil birth certificate. Applicable marriage or name-change records.

03 IRISH-BORN GRANDMOTHER

Irish civil birth certificate. Applicable marriage or name-change records.

04 SUBMISSION MATERIAL

Current authority requirements for the witnessed form, certified photo ID copy, original address proofs and photographs.

05 RELATIVE ID / DEATH RECORD

Current authority requirements for a certified photo ID copy, or an original death certificate where the relevant parent or grandparent is deceased.

Example document status

Alex's birth record

Reportedly held. Check that it is the full civil record and the parent details match.

Mother's birth record

Reportedly held. Linking marriage/name-change record still to locate.

Grandmother's records

Irish birth and linking marriage records are missing in this example.

Submission items

Not checked. Obtain the current authority checklist before arranging witnessing or certification.

Order matters: identify the correct civil entries first. Do not pay for translations, apostilles or extra certified copies unless the route actually requires them.

YOUR APPLICATION ROADMAP

A practical sequence for this fictional grandparent route. Move forward when the evidence supports the next stage.

01

Find the missing civil entry

Locate the grandmother's Cork birth record and identify the matching full certificate.

02

Connect each generation

Compare grandmother, mother and applicant birth records. Gather relevant linking name-change records.

03

Resolve discrepancies

Record spelling, surname and date differences. Establish what evidence or correction is actually needed.

04

Prepare the official application

Use the current FBR service, generated checklist and instructions for the applicant's circumstances.

05

Complete witness requirements

Arrange the required witnessing, ID certification, photographs and supporting items as directed.

06

Submit and retain a record

Pay the authority's fee, send the required documents and keep the application reference and a private record log.

07

After citizenship registration

If registration is granted, use the official first-passport process. Passport eligibility and documents are checked separately.

KEEP THE STAGES SEPARATE

An ancestry assessment, citizenship registration and passport application are different steps. This report is research and guidance; YDC does not submit the application.

PERSONAL TIMELINE & BUDGET

Separate the report price from authority and document costs. Official figures below were checked on 15 October 2026 and should be reconfirmed before payment.

COST ITEM	PLANNING AMOUNT
YDC assessment	£59 one-off. No VAT charged.
Adult Foreign Birth Registration	€278 including the listed return postage.
Certificates, photographs and outward post	Depends on missing items and service choices. Obtain current quotes.
Later standard adult online passport	€75 plus €15 overseas postage, where applicable. Separate application.

+ A realistic planning sequence

NOW | GATHER & CHECK

Locate civil entries, obtain missing records and resolve discrepancies. Duration depends on the evidence gaps.

AFTER A COMPLETE FBR APPLICATION

Published guidance indicates approximately 12 months. Further information requests can extend the process.

AFTER REGISTRATION

Passport processing is separate. Check the current first-passport requirements and processing guidance before booking travel.

PACK, CHECK & ORGANISE

A simple record structure

Keep one private folder per person, and a separate application folder. These are organisational suggestions, not authority filing rules.

Suggested file name

Person_Record_Issuer_Year.pdf
Example: Grandmother_Birth_Cork_1945.pdf

Quality rules

Names must link

Compare names across generations and identify every change that needs a linking record.

Use the right record

Check whether a full civil certificate, certified copy or original is required for that item.

Protect originals

Keep a log of originals sent and follow the authority's current return/postage instructions.

Submission checks

Use the current checklist

Do not reuse another applicant's document list as a substitute for your own requirements.

Certify only as directed

Who can witness or certify, and how, depends on the official process.

Keep secure copies

Store your own private copies securely. Do not post identity documents in public groups or forms.

YOUR SHORTCUT IN THIS EXAMPLE

Check records already held. Prioritise the grandmother's birth record and linking name-change records.

RISKS & IMPORTANT CHECKS

A useful assessment makes uncertainty visible. Resolve a material issue before relying on a positive conclusion or committing to an application expense.

01

Family story vs civil record

The Cork birth is reported, not verified. Confirm the exact entry before ordering the certificate.

02

Names or dates do not match

Do not silently normalise inconsistencies. Establish which linking record, explanation or correction is needed.

03

Citizenship changed in the family

Identify the person, event, country and exact event date where known. Compare it with the next generation's birth when the rule requires that.

04

Adoption or uncertain parentage

Ordinary biological-line assumptions may not fit. Obtain a separate scope review and appropriately qualified advice where needed.

05

Rules or requirements change

Use dated official sources and recheck the process before applying. A previous family success does not establish the outcome for another applicant.

WHEN THE FACTS CHANGE, THE ASSESSMENT CHANGES

If a decisive fact cannot be established, the conclusion remains conditional. YDC does not issue an official eligibility certificate or an approval probability.

YOUR PERSONAL ROADMAP CHECKLIST

Start with the one missing record that moves the case forward.

- [ ] Ask the family what they hold

  List full civil records already available for Alex, his mother and grandmother. Avoid duplicate orders.

- [ ] Locate the grandmother's birth entry

  Confirm the Cork civil entry using the best available name and date information.

- [ ] Build the record chain

  Match the mother's parent details and Alex's parent details. Record the evidence status for each link.

- [ ] Find linking marriage/name records

  Establish how the grandmother's birth surname connects to later records, and any other relevant changes.

- [ ] Resolve any material uncertainty

  Check citizenship events, disputed facts or adoption before treating the ordinary route as the right process.

- [ ] Use the official application checklist

  Arrange witnessing and certification only after confirming the current instructions for the actual application.

YOUR NEXT STEP

Locate the grandmother's Cork birth record. If the details are unclear, begin with the evidence gap rather than guessing a date, name or eligibility result.

QUESTIONS & INCLUDED CLARIFICATION

Does this mean I am already approved?

No. This example identifies a potential route on reported facts. Authorities decide applications and whether the submitted evidence meets their requirements.

Do I need every certificate before ordering a report?

No. A document plan can identify what is missing. A report must explain when missing evidence prevents a firm conclusion.

Will citizenship automatically pass to my children?

Do not assume that. In an FBR-dependent chain, a parent's registration before the child's birth can matter; the child may then need their own registration. Other routes and facts need separate checks.

Do British citizens need Irish citizenship to live in Ireland?

British citizens already have significant rights in Ireland under Common Travel Area arrangements. Irish citizenship and broader EU rights are different questions.

Is Beyond Ancestry a second personalised assessment?

No. It is a separate general guide to researching other routes. It does not establish eligibility for another country or guarantee an alternative pathway.

What clarification is included?

One email question about the delivered report, submitted within 14 calendar days of delivery. We aim to answer within 2 working days. A new country or family line needs a separate scope.
